

Princeton Elementary Dedication

Princeton Elementary, which opened to students in 1926, was recently renovated to include new classrooms featuring computers, digital projectors and interactive smart boards.

Today Orlando City Commissioner Robert Stuart, a Princeton alumnus, presented the school with original artwork of the new campus. Pictured left to right are: Orange County Public Schools Superintendent Barbara Jenkins, School Board member Nancy Robinson, School Board Chair Bill Sublette, Princeton Principal Andrew Rollins and Orlando City Commissioner Robert Stuart. The Princeton Panther Chorus provided entertainment.

Each speaker at the dedication thanked Orange County voters for approving the half-penny sales tax in 2002 that made Princeton's renovation possible. They advised audience members more Orange County schools need similar renovations.

College Park Community Paper – 12/6/12